Part 1
It was the day before Christmas in New York, a little more than a hundred years ago. Della counted her money again. She had only one dollar and eighty-seven cents, and she had saved every cent for months. Della and her husband, Jim, rented a small, cheap apartment, and Jim did not earn much money. Della wanted to give Jim a special Christmas present, but what could she buy with so little? She sat down and cried. The young couple owned only two treasures. One was Jim's gold watch, which had once belonged to his father and grandfather. The other was Della's beautiful brown hair. It was so long that it reached below her knees.
Part 2
Suddenly, Della had an idea. She put on her old coat and hat and hurried to a shop that bought hair. The owner looked at Della's hair and offered twenty dollars, and Della agreed. For the next two hours, she went from store to store, looking for the perfect gift. At last she found it: a simple but fine platinum chain for Jim's gold watch. Jim had only an old leather strap for his watch, so he sometimes checked the time secretly. The chain cost twenty-one dollars, and Della went home with eighty-seven cents. When she looked in the mirror, she saw short curls all over her head. She was afraid that Jim would no longer think she was pretty.

Part 3
Jim came home at the usual time. When he opened the door and saw Della, he stopped and stared at her. His face did not look angry or surprised. It showed a strange feeling that Della could not understand. She quickly explained that she had sold her hair to buy him a present and that it would grow back soon. Jim took a small package out of his coat and put it on the table. Inside was a set of beautiful combs with jewels on the edges. Della had wanted them for a long time, ever since she had seen them in a shop window. But now she had no long hair to wear them in.
Part 4
Della showed Jim the watch chain with a happy smile. Jim sat down, smiled gently, and told her that he had sold his gold watch to buy the combs. The narrator ends the story by calling these two young people the wisest gift-givers of all, like the Magi, the wise men who brought gifts to the baby Jesus. Each of them gave up the most precious thing for the other.
